EMERGENCY REPAIRS—Seagull Construction Company crewmen were busy Sunday afternoon and over the long New Year's weekend making emergency repairs to a sewer break at the intersection of State and Toulme Streets in Bay St. Louis. Bay Mayor Larry Bennett reported the repairs to the sewer line were completed on Wednesday with only final packing of the area remaining. The Bay Council recently declared the break an emergency and Seagull Construction Company's bid was accepted by the city. Bennett said the break was in a complicated area due to two gas mains, water main and telephone cable in addition to the sewer line. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

FRED LOGAN HONORED—Fred Logan of Waveland, left, is congratulated by Jim Byrd, state president of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees. Logan was presented a plaque from the national association in recognition of his outstanding service on a national, state and and local level. During the presentation, Byrd traced Logan's contributions to NARFE in the organization of new chapters, his work as state legislative chairman and his tenure as past field vicepresident of Region III. The presentation was made during the local organization's Christmas party at the Diamondhead residence of Jerry Medford, NARFE president, and Betty Medford, secreatary. # Chlorinator should solve C.B. Murphy water problem

BY DENA BISNETTE Hancock County School Board approved bids Wednesday on purchase and installation of gas chlorination equipment a Charles B. Murphy

Elementary School water well. According to Superintendent Terrell Randolph, the pump on the well was installed in 1980 before chlorination equipment was required and the water is not presently chlorinated. Randolph said recent State Bureau of Pollution Control tests on' water from the well have indicated higher-than-normal bacteria counts.

The BPC periodically tests water at all of the district's schools and previous tests during the past two vears have also indicated problems with high bacteria counts. Randolph said the board dealt with those problems by closing the school early or by purchasing bottl-

'Putting in the chlorinator should keep us from having further problems with the well," the superintendent said.

The new equipment, to be purchased from Coast Chlorinator and Pump Co. of North Biloxi for $2,591. will treat the water to kill the bacteria.

The board decided last month that installing gas chlorination equipment would be more cost-effective than occasionally chlorinating the well, which costs about $300 each time it is done.

The one-time chlorination process was tried several weeks ago but the results did not last long enough to continue using the process, Randolph said.

In other business, the board decided to ask the county supervisors to obtain a loan for the purchase of 10

The board opened bids on the buses at its last meeting and on Wednesday decided to approve the two lowest bids, one on bus chassis and one on bus bodies, if the loan can be obtained.

Randolph said the State Department of Education has already approved the proposal to ask the supervisors for a loan.

The buses are needed to replace vehicles that are 10 years old or

The board approved a resolution to be presented at the next supervisor's meeting.

Also on Wednesday, the board approved purchase of 60 desk chairs for Hancock North Central at a price of about $48 per chair; approved transferring a secretary from Hancock North Central Elementary School to Hancock North Central High School and employed Birdie Ladner as a substitute Chapter I

In addition, the board approved travel for administrators attending an Executive Management Institute meeting at Pearl River Junior College and teacher recruitment activities at several colleges.

The board also heard a report from Randolph, who asked attorney Joseph Gex for an opinion on a matter concerning the installation of heating system at Clermont Harbor School during 1980. Randolph said Weaver and Sons.

one of the subcontractors on the pro--ject, had complained to the board that some of the payments for the job still have not been made. Gex said the responsibility for the payments lie with the contractor and not the school district since the district paid the contractor in full. The board meets again at 6 p.m. Monday.

Holiday accidents, arrests decrease in Hancock

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK Reports from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments. reveal a substantial decrease in the number of holiday arrests and accidents during the 1984-85 season.

"I attribute the decrease to more people being consious of the dangers of driving under the influence of alcohol," Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

People are taking more precautions and all the publicity has helped

Last year during the holiday season, beginning just prior to Christmas and ending after New Year's Day, there were 28 arrests for driving under the infulence in

Hancock County,

For the 1984-85 season there were only 19, a decrease of nine arrests. A marked decrease of 14 arrests was noted for the New Year's holiday season. In 1984-85 there were only six arrests compared to the 20 in the last season.

Peterson said this decrease could also be attributed to the "stiffer penalities" in effect this past holiday season

For a first-time offender arrested for driving under the influence. there is an immediate loss of driver license and a fine of $350 to $1,000, Peterson said.

He added that the license will be returned following the completion of Mississippi Alcoholic Safety Educa-

Second-time offenders must serve 48 hours in jail, loose their driver license for one year and are required pay a fine of $500 to $1,000, Peterson said.

The sheriff's office, Hancock General Hospital and Bay St. Louis and Waveland police also had offered free rides home to anyone during the holidays.

The number of accidents reported in the holiday seasons also decreas-

According to reports from local officials there were only eight accidents for this past season compared to 14 in the 1983-84 season.

"Altogether it has been a fairly quite holiday season compared to what we usually have," Peterson

Supreme Court decision disturbs business group

The chairman of the Mississippi Economic Council has voiced concern about an apparent "change of course" in business regulation by the state's Supreme Court.

Council Chairman Lewis Whitfield of Tupelo, a bank president, said the apparent change in direction came n a recent case before the court on appeal from the Public Service Com-

In a decision upholding the Public Service Commission's denial of a rate increase to South Central Bell Telephone Company the court said a basic consideration is "why this state and other states have a public service commission to regulate monopolistic utilities...

The court added that "The Legislature wisely has provided personnel and funds for the operation of the three-man public service commission. For example, the budget for the commission including its 115 full-time employees and staff members for the current year is approximately $3,000,000 more than the budget for this nine-man court and its limited staff." In this 1982 case a Hinds County chancellor had reversed the order of the Public Service Commission and granted a rate increase although the increase granted was not as large as the increase requested by the com-

The Public Service Commission, the Attorney General, and the Mississippi Legal Services Coalition appealed the decision of the chancellor to the Supreme Court and the court overturned the chancellor's decision and reinstated the decision of the commission.

The company had requested a rate increase of some $98 million, the chancellor had allowed an increase of $61 million, and the commission had allowed no increase.

The court said "the rate-making function is legislative in character and not the function of the court," And, the court added, "We are compelled to conclude that the inhabitants of the State of Mississippi, through its elected legislative branch, have extended the threemember public service commission's powers to great dimensions. These arms of the Legislature are subject to the will of the people every four years in order to retain their power grant. In the event any should, through inadvertance or otherwise, let politics. either individual or corporate, enter into the decision making, the ballot box is the primary remedy,"

Whitfield said MEC took no position on the question of the rate increase for the utility company because "we are not qualified to make such a decision," but added that the council's concern is with the direction of the appeals process from decisions of regulatory agen-

The appeals process for Public Service Commission decisions was revised by the Legislature in 1963. Prior to the change, decisions of the commission were appealed to the Hinds County Chancery Court and from that court to the Supreme

Under the 1983 change, decisions of the commission are appealed directly to the Supreme Court.

"Our concern is that the Supreme Court appears to be withdrawing as a review court in appeals from regulatory agencies," Whitfield

"If the court withdraws in appeals from the Public Service Commission it can also withdraw from review of decisions from other regulatory bodies, as the Workers' Compensation Commission and other commissions and agencies, regulating business operations in the state.

Such a withdrawal, leaving business with no recourse in the event of unfavorable or inappropriate decisions, could have a detrimental effect on the economic advancement of the state."

The recent decision by the Supreme Court, Whitfield added, seems to ignore the statutory plan for review and leaves us wondering whether we shall have business regulation solely by administrative bodies or whether we shall have a higher court to which we can appeal.

"The decision," the MEC chairman concluded, "leaves us in a no man's land, wondering where this apparent change of course will

Election scheduled for school trustee

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK Election of a Bay St. Louis' Municipal Separate School District trustee is scheduled March 2 to select a permanent board member, according to J. D. McCullouch, superintendent.

Margo Frommeyer of Waveland is currently serving in the position to be filled.

"Mrs. Frommeyer is finishing out the unexpired term of Betty Diboll. This election will be for a five-year term," McCullouch said.

McCullouch added that the length of the term could be changed by the Educational Finance Commission's consolidation plan.

Diboll, who resigned when her family relocated to Bay St. Louis, is presently an appointed member of the board.

The opening is available to qualified candidates from Waveland and the unincorporated area of Hancock County within the school district, McCullouch said.

Requirements to qualify for the election include filing a petition with the superintendent on or before Jan. 18, being a resident of the area and a qualified elector and having signatures of 25 qualified electors on the petition filed with the superinten-

Local residents arrested for substance possession

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A Hancock County undercover deputy sheriff arrested and charged two local residents for the possession and sale of a controlled substance Sunday on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

Willie Nelson Jr., 28, of Bay St. Louis and Stephen Troy Saucier, 21, Apt. 27, Sycamore Street, Bay St. Louis allegedley sold pharmaceutical drugs to the undercover officer late Sunday afternoon, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Following the exchange of the drugs and money, the undercover officer arrested Nelson and Saucier. He was assisted by Waveland Police officers and other Hancock County deputies who had been in surveillance.

Nelson and Saucier had been released on a $5,000 property bond Dec. 24 following their arrest by the Bay St. Louis Police Department for the alleged burglary of ABC Rental on Dec. 18.

BY KATY MCGUIRE CAIRE

What are your New Year's Resolutions after all the celebration and feasting of the Yuletide season? Well, in the last day or so, I've been hearing a lot of resolves to "cut down" and to "diet" -but, wasn't it all just too, too delicious?

I returned home from a wonderful Christmas visit to my family in Mandeville, feasting all the time -and just in time to join in the New Year's Eve and New Year's gatherings here at home. More feasting!

And, this old cook picked up a lot of new culinary ideas along the way -one "cookaholic" can always learn at least a little something from another, right?

Such as my daughter-in-law's, Sue McGuire, special pork roast, well marinated in all sorts of good things before roasting to a turn, or her delicious spinach dip, rich with sour cream and seasonings, or the -I could go on and on, let's just say that I gorged on all the goodies.

And, when all of us dedicated diners had somehow managed not to leave a bit of the spinach dip and the extra-good raw oysters, smart Sue warmed up the leftover dip, chopped up the leftover oysters and combined the two into a tasty filling for shell dishes, baked briefly - and we had a special appetizer for the next day!

Or Thelma Yockey's delicious and easy dip for our New Year's Eve gathering -sour cream and a package of Spring vegetable soup mix -a taste change from onion dip, good as it is! Or Mary De Metz's party sandwiches of chicken salad -Mary says that she starts with a boiled chicken and just mixes it all up, but somehow, hers always tastes better than mine.

On to New Year's Day —despite Caire)

the delicious baked ham, shrimp salad and all the other treats on Cookie Kane New Year's Day Open House table, including, of course, the black-eyed peas (and, if you've never tasted my grandson's, Brian McGuire, jalapene and Tabasco spiked black-eyed peas, you've missed something) and cabbage for good luck in the New Year. I feasted most on "Polish Mistakes," as Cookie calls them.

Well, if they're mistakes, all I can say is that cooks should make such mistakes more often. Cookie said that she doesn't know why these delicious appetizers have such a name -perhaps it's because some cook 'way back put equal parts of pork sausage and hamburger meat together instead of using all one kind -but if he or she did, how lucky we

I wont' tell you how many of these I ate, I didn't even admit to Cookie the reason why she had to keep refilling the plate, but here's:

POLISH MISTAKES

1 lb. hot pork sausage, bulk 1 lb. lean ground meat 1 lb. Velveeta cheese

1 Tblsp. Worcestershire sauce. some of oregano

½ tsp. garlic power Cook the sausage, drain, same with the ground meat, mix together. In double boiler, or over other water-filled saucepan, melt the cheese, with the seasonings added. Then add the meats, mix well together, till you get a "gop" as Cookie says. Spread on slices of party rye bread or squares cut from a rye loaf, or, if you're being extra fancy, on rounds of rye bread which you've laboriously cut.

Freeze on cookie sheets, store in ags, and bring forth as you wish,

When you're ready for these tidbits, run them in the microwave for about half a minute, or in a 350° oven for about 10 to 15 minutes -oh, so good! If you like yours hotter than hot, you may want to add a dash or so of Tabasco to the meat and cheese mixture, but, whatever you do, you'll enjoy this treat.

P.S. And, you don't have to freeze 'em, you can eat 'em at once!

I want to get out, but what can I do? A: There are seven domestic violence shelters in the State of Mississippi which provide safe temporary shelter, food, clothing. counseling and legal, medical and psychological advocacy. To get custody of your children, your husband would have to prove that you are an unfit mother. The shelters and their phone

Q: I am a widow and own my home. When I die I want my son to have it, but when he dies I want it to go to my granddaughter. Is there any way I can do this?

A: Yes. In your will you can devise the home to your son for the period of his lifetime, with a provision that upon his death the remainder will go to your granddaughter. If you do this then, even if your son sells his interest in the house, when he dies the ownership automatically goes to your granddaughter.

Car, pick-up collide on 603 near Waveland

BY DENA BISNETTE

A collision on Hwy. 603 two miles north of Waveland left three people with minor injuries Saturday.

According to a report from the Mississippi Highway Patrol, the vehicles involved were a pick-up truck driven by Michael S. Henley of Kiln and a car driven by Bryan Ladnier of Gulfport.

Henley and a passenger in his vehicle, Deborah Henley, were taken to Hancock General Hospital. where both were treated and released, according to Hancock General Community Relations Director Mary Perkins.

Ladnier also received minor injuries, a Highway Patrol spokesman

ETV Brief

FILM SERIES

"From the American Film Institute," the new series produced at the American Film Institute's Center for Advanced Film Studies in Los Angels, will present three halfhour films at 10 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 8, 9 and 10 on Mississippi ETV.

In "The New Wife" on Tuesday, a young immigrant bride from Hong Kong joins her husband in Los Angeles, believing him to be established as the manager of a Chinese restaurant, but the reality proves different.

A multi-award-winner, "When the Bough Breaks," on Wednesday examines the conflict between a teenage girl and her widowed father. Growing up in a small California desert town, she finds her desire to experience romance in direct opposition to her father's desire to control her. "Moonface" on Thursday is based on a story by Jack London. A young writer, faced with an impending deadline and a severe case of writer's block, flees the city for a quiet cabin in the mountains. There he encounters a practical-joking caretaker, and the story moves toward an unexpected climax.

tions after all the celebration and feasting of the Yuletide season? Well, in the last day or so, I've been hearing a lot of resolves to "cut down" and to "diet" -but, wasn't it all just too, too delicious?

I returned home from a wonderful Christmas visit to my family in Mandeville, feasting all the time -and just in time to join in the New Year's Eve and New Year's gatherings here at home. More feasting!

And, this old cook picked up a lot of new culinary ideas along the way -one "cookaholic" can always learn at least a little something from another, right?

Such as my daughter-in-law's, Sue McGuire, special pork roast, well marinated in all sorts of good things before roasting to a turn, or her delicious spinach dip, rich with sour cream and seasonings, or the -I could go on and on, let's just say that I gorged on all the goodies.

And, when all of us dedicated diners had somehow managed not to leave a bit of the spinach dip and the. extra-good raw oysters, smart Sue warmed up the leftover dip, chopped up the leftover oysters and combined the two into a tasty filling for shell dishes, baked briefly -and we had a special appetizer for the next day!

Or Thelma Yockey's delicious and easy dip for our New Year's Eve gathering -sour cream and a package of Spring vegetable soup mix -a taste change from onion dip, good as it is! Or Mary De Metz's party sandwiches of chicken salad -Mary says that she starts with a boiled chicken and just mixes it all up, but somehow, hers always tastes better than mine. On to New Year's Day -despite the delicious baked ham, shrimp salad and all the other treats on Cookie Kane New Year's Day Open House table, including, of course, the black-eyed peas (and, if you've never tasted my grandson's, Brian McGuire, jalapene and Tabasco spiked black-eyed peas, you've missed something) and cabbage for good luck in the New Year. I feasted most on "Polish Mistakes," as Cookie calls them.

Well, if they're mistakes, all I can say is that cooks should-make such mistakes more often. Cookie said that she doesn't know why these delicious appetizers have such a name -perhaps it's because some cook 'way back put equal parts of pork sausage and hamburger meat together instead of using all one kind -but if he or she did, how lucky we

POLISH MISTAKES 1 lb. hot pork-sausage, bulk

1 lb. lean ground meat 1 lb. Velveeta cheese

1 Tblsp. Worcestershire sauce, some of oregano

½ tsp. garlic power Cook the sausage, drain, same with the ground meat, mix together. In double boiler, or over other water-filled saucepan, melt the cheese, with the seasonings added. Then add the meats, mix well together, till you get a "gop" as Cookie says. Spread on slices of party rye bread or squares cut from a rye loaf, or, if you're being extra fancy, on rounds of rye bread which you've laboriously cut.

Freeze on cookie sheets, store in ags, and bring forth as you wish.

When you're ready for these tidbits, run them in the microwave for about half a minute, or in a 350° oven for about 10 to 15 minutes -oh, so good! If you like yours hotter than hot, you may want to add a dash or so of Tabasco to the meat and cheese mixture, but, whatever you do, you'll enjoy this treat.

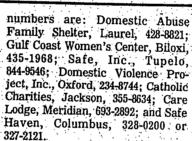

P.S. And, you don't have to freeze 'em, you can eat 'em at once! (Copyright, 1985, Katharine D.M.

Q: I have been married for five years. I have two children, ages four and two. My husband beats me a couple of times a week. He tells me that if I leave, he will get my children. I've never worked and I don't have any money. My parents are dead and I have no other family.

A: There are seven domestic violence shelters in the State of Mississippi which provide safe tempsychological advocacy. To get custody of your children, your husband would have to prove that you are an unfit mother.

Q: I am a widow and own my home. When I die I want my son to have it, but when he dies I want it to go to my granddaughter. Is there any way I can do this?

A: Yes. In your will you can devise the home to your son for the period of his lifetime, with a provision that upon his death the remainder will go to your granddaughter. If you do this then, even if your son sells his interest in the house, when he dies the ownership automatically goes to your granddaughter.

Public Education's New Trend: State Legislative Control

By WILLIAM S. PURVIS

the nation's public schools," declining in quality to proce than two decades, are indergoing yet another change. Nation wide, there is a trend toward state legislative control which has accelerated greatly in recent years. This national trend has developed because of, or perhaps in spite of the loss of control by both. state and local governments to lederal court intervention which characterized forced integration, (Federal court orders are still wreak) ing havoe in various places around the country, and can at any given moment disrupt, dismantle or destroy anything set up under state of local control.)

At the time of forced integration's meeption, the 1954 Supreme Court decision in the case of Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, the federal government was contributing less than 5% to the total cost of public education. The lion's share of the expense at that time was being borno by it whical taxing unit—the county or the unicipal district - but with a hear mount coming from state tax some 3. In the early days, of forced integration the threat of withholding federal funds was totally meffective when it was realized just hos little federal money was ined The "force" of forced infigration came from courts orders which imposed jail sentences and lines upon school board members and administrative personnel who da ed not comply. The threat of w holding federal funds was a a nor factor?

Praditionally our nation's schools been characterized by a wide variation between districts on the ievel of state and local support. The state provided a minimum support level de local ability or interest determ. whether the schools were well financed or not. While the influence of the state was evident, whatever controls there were came from a "state education department" and not from the state legislature. Nation-wide only about 35% of the fringing for public schools came from the state, with more than 60% oming from local taxes. This exrlains why the schools, while subrutting to state regulations. pervision, accreditation standards and inspection, still remaine

e coptrol of local school boards. Beginning in the 1960's, a decade if francic federal spending on the public schools ran the federal share of the cost of public education up to # 9%. Federal spending remained high, topping out at 9.8% between 10 78 and 1980. Since 1980 there has en a sharp decline to 7.1% in the hool year 1982-83, the last one th complete figures available. In explaining the decrease in federal spending on public schools, President Reagan pointed out that such spending was apparently counterproductive in that the decade of high tederal spending coincided with a decline in the quality of public education.

It is interesting to note that the al cost of public education was 550 billion in 1971-72 and up to $117 billion in 1982-83. During that same period, the state increased its portion of support from 38.3% to 48.3% in 1982-83, an all-time high. Local support decreased from 52,8% in 1971-72 to 44,6% in 1982-83, Several changes are associated with the states' picking up the largest share of the education tab. Primary among the changes is the fact that the State legislatures are getting directly involved in the schools. During the last three years, according to the Education Commission of the United States, at least 40 state legislatures have increased the academic courses required for a high school diploma, 32 have changed curriculum standards or adopted new procedures for choosing textbooks, two dozen states have lengthened the school day or year, and 42 have moved to improve the training or raise the certification standards of new teachers.

The tradition of wealthy districts having excellent schools and poor districts having poor schools has drawn criticism in this "age of equality". Civil Rights and other pressure groups demand that state legislatures "do something" to improve the failing and tinequal schools. Local entirens are detenting

The art of being wise is the art of knowing what to overlook. William James bond issues and refusing to support macceptable public schools. Federal spending has not only been wasteful. and ineffective, but is being cut back, and it was and is still wrapped in red tape and controls.

What all this means is this; state legislatures are now going to exercise more control than ever before. You know the golden rule - he who has the gold, rules: Legislators are not going to throw money into a program or into a district for the local schools to use the money as they please. It also means that state legislators are going to be making decisions, establishing criteria, and handing down rules, which have traditionally been taken care of by local school boards.

In the words of T. H. Bell, who recently resigned as Secretary of Education, "nature abhors a vacuum, and there's been a vacuum of local leadership in many, many instances". The present attitude of the federal government is that it is not going to fill that vacuum. It looks as if state fegislatures will.

A cursory glance back over the last two decades reveals that through its court orders, laws and guidelines, the federal government created the vacuum in local school leadership, but, of course, that's the subject of another column,

County Agent's Notes

By Lee Taylor

Lime Important on Grain Crops So much has been said and written about applying lime on legumes that we sometimes forget how important it is on wheat, grain sorghum and corn.

The weather thus far in Hancock County has been good for applying lime. Lime needs to be applied this winter to allow time for the chemical reactions to take place by spring planting.

Lime supplies calcium, an essential element, as well as raises the soil pH, which makes other nutrients available for the plants to use. A soil pH of 5.6 to 6.2 is high enough to produce top yields on most grain crops, Dolomitic lime supplies magnesium, another important plant growth element. Magnessum deficiency on corn, for example, can occur where corn is grown for silage or where yields are high. Adding one ton of dolomitic limestone every six years should correct this problem.

Using too much lime can cause zinc deficiency in corn. At a pH of near 7.0 or higher, zinc is "tied up." So, using a fertilizer that contains zinc is advisable if soil zinc levels are marginal and lime is applied.

Grain sorghum is particularly sensitive to low pH. A pH of 5.6 or higher is necessary to reach top yields. A lower pH of 5.3 to 5.4 reduces yields 12 to 15 percent, while a pH of 4.8 to 4.9 reduces yields 60 to 65 percent. A lower pH sorghum may die in the seedling stage.

Soil testing is the only way to know for sure if your soil is at the desired pH level. Our office has the information and materials you need to take a soil test and determine lime and fertilizer needs.

Gardening for 1985

Gardening may be the most distant thing from your mind now, but January starts the new gardening year, All gardeners will want to kňow what's new for 1985.

The All-America Selection for 1985 is Sunburst summer scallop squash. You may be familiar with the white scallop or pattypan squash. Sunburst has bright yellow fruit with dark-green blossoms and stem ends. Seed should be available for planting in the spring of 1985.

There are many other new vegetable varieties in the new seed. catalogs. If you want to try them, look for disease resistance, and plant only a small part of your garden to new varieties.

Several new vegetable varieties looked good in 1984, The Extension office has a list of these for you to consider this year. Our office also has a copy of the Extension Garden Tabloid. This gives you a wealth of information to make your 1985 gardening year a more successful one.

Home baked breads are special. Whatever the choice, they're always welcomed and enjoyed.

Baking-powder * breads, sometimes called quick breads, rise with the help of baking powder, baking soda or, as in the case of popovers, steam. Many bakingpowder breads, such as biscuits, spoon bread and popovers, are at their best served hot from the oven, Others, such as fruit and nut loaves, need to mellow a day or more, so they are easy to slice and have a full flavor.

Baking failures are most always caused by poor selection or handling of relatively inexpensive basic ingredients-flour, liquid, leavening agents, shortening and sugar: Each basic ingredient, in the proper proportion, serves one or more important purposes in a wellbalanced recipe. Both fat and sugar affect tenderness, flavor, and texture of baked products. Eggs also provide flavor, help to bind flour mixtures together, and contribute to lightness of finished products.

Three ingredients-four, liquid, and leavening agents-perform best in recipes when the cook knows more about their characteristics than most recipes tell.

Wheat flour is the most important ingredient in any baked product because of the strength of the doughs or batters made from it.

When wheat flour is moistened, its particles stick to each other in long elastic strands.

Without this elastic quality in doughs and batters, there would be no point in adding leavening agents to them. However, if all doughs and batters were equally elastic, there would be little difference in textures of breads, cakes and pastries. Hence, because of its greater elasticity, an all-purpose flour that feels gritty to the touch is best for yeast breads.

On the opposite end of the scale, cake flours that feel soft to the touch makes the less elastic batters that we need for fine-textured cakes.

When all-purpose flour is used for cakes, results are best if recipes used are those written for all-purpose flour. All-purpose flour can be used in recipes written for cake flour, but the texture may be a bit coarse.

To substitute all-purpose flour for cake flour, reduce the amount of flour by two tablespoons for each cup of flour called for in the recipe. Also, be careful to mix cake batters made from all-purpose flour just enough to make a smooth batter.

The lightness of baked products. depends on expansion of the dough or batter during preparation and baking. Though air and steam cause some increase in volume during baking, baking powder or soda are usually used to form gas that increases volume of quick breads and cakes.

Soda develops an abundance of gas the instant an acid liquid is mixed with it, causing the dough or batter to rise immediately. The lightness of soda leavening can be captured at its peak only when doughs or batters are popped into a preheated oven very soon after soda is mixed with the acid ingredient. baking powders differ from baking soda in speed of action and type of liquid with which they work best. Water, sweet milk, or another lowacid liquid is used in a baking powder-leavened product. Because double-acting baking powder forms gas when mixed with liquid and gain when heated, inexperienced cooks run less risk of failure with double-acting powder than with soda. Slow mixing or a short delay before heating baking powderleavened doughs and batters does not damage the end product, but a one-or two-hour delay from mixing bowl to oven usually results in reduced volume. Another trick to successful bread making is choosing the right baking pans. Muffins' and biscuits brown best on shiny metal baking sheets and pans. For loaves use pans made of dull metal, anodized aluminum or glass. For those using glass, set the oven temperature 25 degrees lower than the recipe calls for. If there's any left, wrap leftover biscuits in foil with a sheet of foil between each layer of biscuits and freeze. Reheat in a 375° oven for about 20 minutes. Wrap muffins in the same way; reheat in a 400° oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Most coffeecakes reheat well, although it is best to let them first thaw in the refrigerator. Leave them in the foil and heat in a 400° oven for 20 to 30 minutes.

Fruit and nut loaves also freeze well and do not need to be heated. Simply let them thaw overnight in the refrigerator, or for about two hours at room temperature.

Specially marked licenses to be issued to minors

A four-year project began Jan. 1 that will provide Mississippians under the age of 21 with specially marked driver licenses.

The licenses will have the work 'Minor' prominently displayed on them and the date of birth will be highlighted with a special marker.

Public Safety Commissioner James L. Roberts Jr. said the special licenses will be issued to assist businesses required to identify potentially underaged

"It is currently illegal, for example, to sell alcoholic beverages other than beer and light wines to persons under the age of 21 in Mississippi," Roberts said.

'These new licenses will make it easier for liquor store operators and lounges to identify underage patrons."

Roberts cautioned merchants, however, that no effort would be made to recall, cancel or reissue unmarked licenses that are sold before Jan. 1, 1985. He said that means thousands of teenagers will possess valid, color-photo driver licenses without the markings for up to a four-year period.

"Liquor store and lounge operators and other businessmen will continue to be responsible for screening their customers even after our four-year project is complete," the commissioner said. "Our effort is designed only to help them detect those who are not yet 21."

The list of businesses that may find the specially marked licenses useful includes banks, loan companies, credit unions, lawyers and others who may be involved in preparing or executing legal contracts and also businesses that sell adult motion pictures, videotapes or magazines.

The licenses will also assist convenience store operators and others who sell beer. The legal agefor purchasing beer in Mississippi is 18; however, the 1985 Legislature will consider a bill that would raise the legal age for purchasing beer to Mississippi driver licenses are commonly used as identification cards. This has especially been true since the state began issuing colorphoto driver licenses.

"The new specially marked licenses will be more difficult to alter than the ones currently being used," Roberts said.

The commissioner said persons who reach their 21st birthday before their driver licenses expires may continue to use the specially marked licenses because the highlighted date of birth will make it easy to prove one's age.

"Those over 21 who object to holding a minor's driver licenses may purchase an unmarked. duplicate license for $5," he said.

GUARDIAN OF SMALL BUSINESS—Rep. Trent Lott, right, receives the "Guardian of Small Business" Award from the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) for his outstanding voting record on smallbusiness ssues from federation president John Sloan in recent Washington ceremonies. The nation's largest small-business group presented Lott with the award because he voted in support of positions voiced by the majority of NFIB members 83 percent of the time. On announcing the award Sloan said, "The voting record of Rep. Lott throughout this Congress demonstrates that he is responsive to the needs of his state, because small businesses create the majority of new jobs and, if left to flourish, will continue to be the driving force behind this country's resurgent economic growth." House members were rated in 18 recorded votes during this session of Congress. Issues ranged from cutting the federal deficit to controlling payroll taxes to giving small firms a chance to compete for government contracts. Members of Congress who failed to vote on at least 70 percent of the issues counted in the ratings were not eligible for the award. NFIB is a non-profit, non-partisan organization representing 4,537 small-business owners in Minnesota and more than a half-million independent businesses across the country.

New Tax Proposals

The Treasury's new tax proposal, if accepted, would cut the average individual's taxes by 8.5 percent. However, corporate taxes would increase according to the proposal by 37 percent.

The plan would reduce tax-rate brackets for individuals from 14 to 3. The rates proposed are 15 percent. 25 percent and 35 percent. Deductions which would be eliminated are those for state and local income taxes. Personal interest expense, charitable and property deductions would be reduced. Certain fringe benefits would also be taxed.

A family of four now pays taxes on income in excess of $8,937. Under the new proposal, taxes would be paid on that in excess of $11.800.

Those most likely to gain under the new tax plan are poor to middleincome families who use few credits or deducations. About 22 percent of individual taxpayers would pay more. Approximately 78 percent would pay the same or less.

Corporations using a large amount of investment tax-credit and capital recovery would fare badly under the plan. Companies as well as individuals that invest heavily and use large amounts of deductions and credits will be the big losers. (Source: Wall Street Journal)

Governor cites January

Eye Health Care Month Governor Bill Allain has proclaimed January as Eye Health Care Month in Mississippi in support of anationwide effort by. ophthalmologists (eye physicians and surgeons) to encourage Americans to take action to reduce the high incidence of unnecessary blindness. Comedian Bob Hope, who recently underwent successful eye surgery, is serving as honorary chairman of National Eye Care Month.

According to Marion L. Dodson MD, of Gulfport, president of the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association, statistics provided by the National Society to Prevent Blindness point up the scope of the problem, and the opportunity to do something about it.

"Nearly 11.5 million persons in the U.S.—one in every 19-suffer some degree of eye damage," Dodson said, "and 47,000 Americans become blind each year."

"The National Society to Prevent Blindness estimates that 50 percent of all blindness can be prevented, and we seek the cooperation of all to reach that goal," he said.

The Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Association is urging the public to prevent eye injuries at public awareness of the need to seek early and accurate diagnosis and treatment by a medical eye specialist (ophthalmologist).

From The Governor's

When we initiated the "Love One Another" Christmas campaign in December, we knew Mississippi people would respond to our efforts to help those who are less fortunate among us. But we had no idea the vast amount of response that we would witness in the last weeks of December:

We began the campaign with state agencies, asking state employees to give what they could to make Christmas happier for their neighbors. In the Governor's office, we adopted two families, providing toys, food, and clothing for one family of four and another family of three. So many employees participated that we were also able to pay the utility bills for these families.

Other state agencies joined in. Some of the groups who adopted families included the State Tax

Gov. Bill Allain

Then we asked the media to respond. The first respondent was from WAPT-TV in Jackson. Their station manager immediately answered the challenge and committed the station to a Christmas project. In addition, the station donated its facilities, personnel and time to cut public service spots for every television station in the state.

Many newspapers and radio stations responded. The Delta Council, which operates along the Mississippi Delta, urged its membership to donate to the cause. In fact, in the City of Greenwood, the Salvation Army ran out of families to adopt.

In Tupelo, the result was similar. Businesses and the City of Tupelo joined together and the Salvation Army in that city also radically reduced the number of families who needed help at Christmas.

The success of the Christmas project is a beautiful story. It's the story that the national news media does not present about Mississippi. But we know that our people share and care and always have.

Now, what we ask is simple: Don't stop this project just because Christmas is over. Keep checking on those families.

If we all work together, we can pull Mississippi forward, no matter what the average wage. And as more people have more, more can be helped. Let us never forget, though, the "least among us."

It is rumored that there's a move under way to abolish the exclamation mark in writing. People aren't surprised at anything any more.

FROM CONFEDERATION. TO CONSTITUTION By Jack N. Rakove Associate Professor of History

Stanford University The defects of the Articles of Confederation provided the impulse for a new Constitution.

Today's controversy over the federal deficit is not the first such controversy in our history. At the end of the revolutionary war, the federal government under the Articles of Confederation had no independent source of revenue.

Instead, it depended on contributions from the states to reduce its staggering debt.

When these contributions proved slow in coming, it began to be apparent that reforms were necessary. Professor Rakove shows how the awareness of the need for reform led to the constitutional convention of 1787

The first amendment to the Articles of Confederation was submitted to the states even before the Articles were ratified on March 1, 1781.

It would have given the Continental Congress a limited power to levy a tax (or duty) on goods imported into the United States. Over the next six years, a number of other amendments were discussed in Congress, and a few were even proposed to the states. None was ever approved.

Amendments to the Articles required the approval of all the states, and this proved impossible to get. All of these amendments were restricted in scope and carefully drawn. They focused on two concerns, First, since Congress constantly teetered on the verge of bankruptcy, efforts to get the states either to honor its requisitions for funds or to give the union some powers of taxation continued throughout the 1780s.

The second concern arose from the commercial depression that afflicted the major American ports after peace. Many Americans believed that if the United States was to be able to counteract the discriminatory commercial policies that Britain and other nations were pursuing toward America, Congress had to be given the power to regulate foreign trade.

Commercial and financial problems would, of course, figure prominently in the movement for the Constitution in 1787-88, and one can certainly see the amendments of the preceding years as portents of things to come.

Yet the striking thing about these amendments, and the general tone. of political debate, is that they barely foreshadow the rich and complex deliberations that would occur in the late 1780s.

Perhaps this should not be surprising. Until even one amendment has been adopted, what incentive could there be for anyone to think of grand constitutional reforms?

But there was a more important reason why the proposals of the mid-1780s fell short of later plans. Those who wished to reform the Articles were not thinking about dealing with the entire gamut of political problems that a decade of Revolution had revealed.

They were not originally thinking of strengthening the union to deal with the problems of republican government within the states. They simply wanted to free Congress from its own debilitating reliance on state authorities.

A few individuals (such as Alexander Hamilton) had thought about the idea of calling a general constitutional convention, but until late 1786, the preferred strategy was the one favored by James Madison.

Rather than risk everything on the unpredictable result of a convention, Madison and others through it wiser to continue to push for the gradual adoption of individual amendments. If only one such measure could be ratified, the obstacles blocking the others might disappear.

Had the proponents of a stronger confederation believed they had unlimited time, they might well have held to this line. But by late 1786, time seemed to be running out.

Debates over commercial issues and foreign policy had begun to reveal that there was no longer a single national interest to which the various states and regions felt they owed allegiance.

With the independence won, appeals to patriotism counted less than calculations of local interest. Speculation that the union might dissolve into separate confederacies no longer seemed wild.

A second problem was that no one believed a strategy of piecemeal reform held out much realistic hope got success. Any amendment which Congress itself proposed was seen as coming from a tained source.

Perhaps an even more important consideration arose from events; within the states. Shays' Rebellion in Massachusetts was the most ominous sign that thorough reform of the entire political system could not be postponed indefinitely. By late 1786, it was beginning to seem ever less likely that merely amending the Articles would be enough.

The political maneuvers that led from the abortive Annapolis Convention of September 1786 to the far more promising (though still risky) meeting of the Constitutional Convention were the fruit of this perception. By the time the delegates assumbled in May 1787, the idea that the Articles of Confederation could survive even as the core of a new Constitution was effectively discredited.

On the eve of the Convention, Madison looked back on the framers of the Articles, and reflected that they had been guilty only of "a mistaken confidence" in the state governments and an "inexperience of the crisis which apologizes for their errors." Neither failing could be ascribed to the makers of the Constitution.

But Madison's honest opinion speaks volumes. The weakness of the Articles of Confederation was the result less of intention or theory than of inexperience.

State Treasurer Bill Cole, in response to a number of inquiries, property law. issued words of caution about the funds for a fee-in Mississippi. "In recent weeks one of these companies has been contacting people in Mississippi informing them that their company had located unclaimed property held by the State of Mississippi of which they might be the rightful owner. The company advises that they can determine the true ownership and claim if for them operations of "ferrets"-persons or companies that locate unclaimed

for a fee," Cole said. In cautioning the public about the operations of "ferrets," Cole said the State Treasury Department can provide essentially the same assistance at no cost.

If anyone in Mississippi believes that they might be the owner of unclaimed property held by the state or wishes to make a determination, all they have to do is contact the State Treasurer's Office.

The Unclaimed Property Division of the State Treasurer's Office has located some $4 million in unclaimed funds and returned over $1 million to the rightful owners and their heirs.

The State Treasurer stated that companies of this type have operated for a number of years in every state that has an unclaimed

Since the Mississippi law is only two years old, this is the first we have seen of this type company beginning to operate in the state." Cole stated that although 'ferrets" are not engaged in illegal activity, he advises the public to make use of the Treasury's Unclaimed Property Division before signing a contract agreeing to a service fee as high as one-third of the account balance in many instances. Should you have any questions concerning Unclaimed Property, contact the State Treasurer's Office, Unclaimed Property Division, P.O. Box 138, Jackson, Miss. 39205.

Mississippians shop around

Mortgage proliferation means consumer choices

By Karen L. Moore Cooperative Extension Service

Until a few years ago, a home buyer had only to decide with mortgage offered the best interest rate. All mortgages were the fixed-rate conventional type.

Now the conventional mortgage is only one of many types of mortgages available. A conventional mortgage is a 25- or 30-year mortgage with the same interest rate and monthly payments over the life of the loan.

As the loan is paid, the proportion of the payment going to the principal increases while the proportion of the payment going to the interest decreases. Conventional loans may be privately financed by banks or savings and loans, or governmentfinanced, such as FHA, VA or Mississippi Housing Finance Corp.

Today's home-mortgage market includes at least ten major types of mortgages. However, with all of the variations of each mortgage, it is difficult to know exactly how many types of the new home mortgages there really are.

Many of these new types of mortgages are available in the state, especially in the more populated areas, according to Dr. Frances C. Graham, housing specialist with Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Although all the different types of mortgages may not be available in one town, if a consumer wants to, he can find other types of mortgages if he is willing to look outside his town," Graham said.

Graduated Payment

In the graduated-payment mortgage, the initial payment may be as much as 20 percent less than payments for a conventional mortgage. Payments increase each year through the first five to 10 years.

"Increases end when the monthly payments equal that which will pay off the loan within the remaining term of the mertgage. At this point, the payments are actually higher than those for a conventional mortgage." Graham said. She also said that total interest over the entire mortgage may be as much as three percent higher than conventional mortgages. The graduated-payment mortgage works for families who currently have smaller incomes but expect larger incomes later. This mortgage can be found in most areas of Mississippi, Graham said.

Variable Rates Another mortgage found in most areas of the state is the variable-rate mortgage. Also called adjustablerate, this mortgage offers a lower interest rate at the beginning of the loan. However, the interest rate can increase or decrease later in the "Consumers should look for a rate cap to prevent interest rates from increasing too much," Graham said. An example would be that the new rate can't be more or less than a twopercent change per year form the current rate being paid.

A one-percent change in the interest rate doesn't sound like much but it can mean as much as $100 difference in a monthly payment. For that reason, Linda Alderson, manager of the mortgage loan department of Security State Bank in Starkville, also advises that consumers look for a rate cap.

"A rate cap, also called a life cap, sets a maximum limit of how much the interest rate can change from the beginning interest rate on the loan. Five percent is a reasonable life cap," she said.

Graham said one thing to avoid is a payment cap which places a limit on how high monthly payments can reach. Although this sounds good at first, it is not. This is because if the interest rate increases, then more of the monthly payment goes to paying off interest charges and less goes to paying off the principal.

It is possible that the monthly payment would not be enough to pay off the increased interest. The interest not paid would be added on to the principal. This increased principal is referred to as "negative amortiza-

At the end of the loan, the principal would not be paid off. A single balloon payment could be required or the consumer could be allowed to refinance.

Prospective borrowers undergo a more stringent credit check for a variable-rate mortgage than they do for a conventional mortgage.

"The lender must decide if the borrower will be able to meet the higher payments if the interest rate goes up to the life cap limit. The lender must also think about what it would do with the property if the borrower defaults on the loan," Alderson said.

The variable-rate mortgage sometimes fits a family's short-term. needs better than its long-term needs Alderson said. She gave the example of a family who knows it will be in a town for a short period of time, such as five years. That family would not be concerned about the interest rate after the five years.

Growing Equity The growing-equity mortgage also features increasing monthly payments, either for the first few years or for the life of the loan. However the result is not negative. amortization because the increased payment is applied to the principal. and not the interest.

Once again, the buyer must have a higher income each year to meet the: regular increases in payments. Graham said this mortgage i.s. available across the state but the at she does not hear of it being us ed

Buy Down

The buy-down interest rate or flexible-loan insurance plan (FI JP) also provides for initial lower 1 nonthly payments. Either the seller, the buyer or a third party puts a lump sum of money in a savings at count that is pledged to the lender.

This fund is used to supp lement the lower monthly paymen'ts until the fund is depleted. When t'his hap-, pens the buyer begins p aying a higher monthly payment. This type of mortgage is also available in most areas of the state, Graham 1 said.

Shared Appreciati on The shared-appreciation mortgage features an interest rate that may be as much as 40 pe rcent lower than conventional mort gage rates, However, the buyer must agree to give the lender a share of the gain in the home's value when the home is sold or when the mortgage is refinanced. Most mor tgages of this type require refinancing within ten years at current inte rest rates. "The SAM will cos t you more than a conventional mort gage if the value of the home increases greatly. Only coastal areas of the state have this type of mortgage,' ' Graham said."

Shared Equity Another mortgage not widely available in the state is the sharedequity mortgage... Brokerage firms arrange partnerships between investors and hom e buyers who cannot manage the purchase of a home without some financial backing.

In exchange, the investor receives a share in the property and possibly some of the trix benefits. The home buyer usually pays rent on the investor's portion of the property. After an agreed upon period, the home buyer either buys out the investor or they sell the house and split the amount of equity.

Balloon Mortgage A balloon mortgage begins like a conventional mortgage but requires the buyer to pay a large final payment or arrange for new financing after a fixed period, usually three to five years. The balloon mortgage allows the home buyer to take advantage of lower interest rates if they oc cur. If refinancing is difficult. to obtain, the home buyer could lose his house.

Graham encouraged consumers to look for two things. "The Loan agreement should have a statement saying what the interest rate is based on and the agreement should also allow refinancing to avoid the balloon payment." Interest rates are based on six-month Treas ury bills, three-year Treasury oblig ations or the home loan rates as surv eyed by the Federal Home Loan Board. B'alloon mortgages are usually fine need by individual owners or builders who can afford to do wi'thout their equity all at once. For th is reason, a balloon mortgage is not very common. Most home sellers a re also home buyers who need their county all at once to help purchase their next house.

Transferred Mortgages

Any type of mortgage can be transferred to another buyer, either by substitution or assumption. In substitution, the original buyer is still liable if the second buyer defaults on the agreement. This is not the case in assuming a mortgage. Either way, the interest rate is lower than what a new mortgage would cost.

The federal government offers a mortgage program for refinancing or resale. It is called Fannie Mae Resale Financing Mortgage and the source of funding is the Federal Housing Authority, Housing and Urban Development. A new interest rate is negotiated. The new rate is higher than the interest rate on the first mortgage but it is lower than current interest rates on new mortgages. It is not a second mortgage. The program is available in most parts of the state. In a second mortgage, the buyer does not have enough money to buy out the first owner's equity. The buyer assumes the seller's first mortgage and also makes separate payments on a second mortgage to the seller.

With all the different kinds of mortgages, it would be very easy for prospective buyers to become confused. 'When shopping for a loan always remember to have thave the lender to explain the terms. The different mortgages go by a variety of names with meanings of the terms changing from lender to lender. There are as many different names for loans as there are letters in the alphabet," Graham said.

The expansion of the home mortgage market is a result of the 1982 Garn-St. Germaine Act which allowed savings and loan institutions to make new types of loans. At the time many savings and loans were having financial problems due to the unprofitability of 30-year loans they had made with lower interest rates. Interest rates in 1982 were much higher than the five percent rate that many of these old loans charged. Lending institutions were losing money because the costs of doing business were higher than what they were making on these old loans.

One reason for increased business costs was the de-regulation of the financial services industry. Banks and savings and loans can now pay higher interest rates on savings accounts; money market funds and

Firms charging high prices for free services

Firms using questionable tactics are taking advantage of many unsuspecting small businesses by charging up to $36 for bidder's mailing list applications and other publications which can be obtained free of charge from the General Services Administration and other federal agencies.

These questionable tactics include use of reproduced U.S. Government forms and printing a name and logo on their letterhead that gives the appearance the firm is somehow associated with the Federal Government. This same service, offered in much greater detail by the General Services Administration, is available free of charge to all firms and individuals interested in doing business with the Federal Govern-

Government. Similar Business Service Centers are located in eleven other regional offices across the country. The idea is to provide a place where the business representative can get professional assistance with one phone call or visit.

Donald F. Layfield, GSA regional administrator in Atlanta, stated that GSA buys more than 600,000 different items each year and spends approximately $5 billion doing it. This means there are business opportunities for all types of firms. Competition is the "name of the game.'

Last year, 70 percent of GSA's purchases in Region 4, covering the eight southeastern states, were awarded to small business firms.

I-59 exit numbers to become mileposts

Exit numbers on Interstate 59 between Picayune and Savoy will be changed to milepost numbers under a highway project next year.

John R. Tabb, director, Mississippi State Highway Department, said change is necessary to accomodate added interchanges and to provide uniformity in the numbering system on the interstate.

When the interstate system was begun in the late 1950's, national standards specified sequentially numbered interchanges.

The weaknesses in this system became apparent with additional interchange development, and in the mid 1960's, the national standards were converted to the milepost numbering method.

Tabb said this has caused some problems since this numbering system is now mixed.

Baby boom retirement problems solutions should be examined

By Dr. John Lovitt MCES

Average life expectancy in this country has moved from under 50 years to more than 70 in just this

Infants have better than a 50-50 chance of living more than the Biblical three score and 10. The baby boomers of the 1946-1964 period will continue to place stress in institutions. This will become more critical after the turn of the century. By 2030 there will be more than 50 million retirees, which will be about twice the number there is

Who will finance the baby boom generation and its children? Assuming that the average life span is 85 years with 20 spent in retirement and 25 spent in education and maturation, there will be 40 years left for work purposes.

Will society have jobs as this group moves toward old age? Is society evolving so it needs fewer people in the conventional work force? If so, how will people build up reserves for retirement? Will automation dictate options for finan-,cing the later years?

These questions must be considered to effectively reduce the risks for the baby boom group and their children, If people are interested in what corporations are doing to, at least in part, deal with employment-financial issues, they should read "Young Programs for Older Workers," published by the Work in America Institute in 1980. Surveys show that many retirees want to work, that many workers in their 50's intend to extend their working careers, and that business recognition of older worker productivity is increasing.

Robert W. Feagles of the Traveler's Insurance Co., which eliminated mandatory retirement three years ago, points out that society has built a system allowing more people to enjoy retirement, but at the same time limits their choices.

"Most people over 65, whatever they may wish to do, face two stark alternatives: either full-time work or full-time retirement with few options in between," he said.

Dark breads challenging white bread as status symbol

Extension Marketing Specialist

Our daily bread—the staff of life... people call it. Its significance is embedded in our language with such terms as breadwinner and breadlines.

The beginnings of bread go back to prehistoric times, when people first learned to pound grain between two stones to crack the tough brain coating. The breads they baked were simply flat cakes made of water and this early flour. The end results was much like the Near East breads and tortillas of today.

But people also learned bread could be made to rise. The early Hebrews used sourdough as a leaven. The Egyptians produced the first yeast-raised breads after they isolated yeast strains from the sourdough mass. They found flour could be ground more finely to make the bread lighter.

In Egypt, in the days of the Pharachs, white bread was the food of the rich who could afford to throw away part of the grain. The color of the bread a person ate became a status symbol.

Over the centuries, the development of lighter, airier, whiter bread progressed. Today, in some sections of American society, there is a counter-trend. Heavier, darker. peasant-type breads have acquired a status of their own.

Some people have begun or returned to baking their own bread. They are using stone-ground flour, unbleached flour or buying breads made of sprouted grains.

Breads are great for gift giving and to prepare ahead and freeze for holiday meals.

Breads differ greatly in taste, size, shape, texture and appearance-depending upon the quality and variety of ingredient. The kneading, handling and molding of the dough; and the manner in which they are baked also contribute differences.

Chewy, crusty bread is simply combination of flour, yeast, water and salt. A rich sweet dough, on the other hand, has fat, eggs and sugar as well as the basics. In spite of these differences, the basic ingredients in bread do the same things in each and every loaf?

Flour is the common denominator of all bread, specifically wheat flour. White wheat flour is the finely ground endosperm or inner part of the wheat kernel. Ninety-two percent of the flour milled is separated from the bran and germ. When it isn't, the result is whole wheat or graham flour.

Wheat is unique among grains and their flours because it contains the proteins, gliadin and glutenin. These two proteins combine in the presence of liquid and develop under manipulation or mixing to form gluten. Gluten is responsible for the elastic film that provides the cellular structure or framework characteristic of all wheat flour products.

The addition of wheat flour to rye flours or corn meal provides gluten structure to capture the bubbles of leavening gas. These come from a chemical leavening agent or growing yeast.

In both cases these are simply carbon dioxide—the same gas that makes soda pop fizz and champagne bubble. Because the gluten catches the gas, the product has a lighter. more porous texture. The greater the percentage of wheat and gluten, the lighter the product.

Flour, whether it's white or whole wheat, reflects the character of the wheat from which it was milled, hard, soft or a graduation in between. People can actually feel the difference.

Hard wheat flours, almost granular to the touch, are higher in protein and usually make better bread. Softer flour, velvety in texture, makes better cakes, pastries and biscuits.

It has a lower protein content. Cake flours are available and labeled as such. Bread flour is available in some of the larger supermarkets.

All-purpose flour was developed for home baking. In most cases it falls somewhere between hard wheat flour-the kind used for bread-making commercially-and soft or cake flour.

Those who buy a harder bread flour from a mill or bakery, will find it takes longer and more vigorous kneading to develop the gluten.

State board names new development director

The Mississippi Board of Economic Development has unanimously approved selection of Gerald L. McDonald as the new executive director of the Department of Economic Development.

McDonald, who is currently assistant secretary for economic development for the state of Maryland, was in Jackson recently to accept the position from Governor Bill Allain, the chairman of the Board of Economic Development. A Washington, D.C., native with 15 years of economic development experience on a state and local level, McDonald replaces former DED Executive Director Bill Hackett, who accepted a position with the state of Louisiana in November.

During a press conference following the board meeting, Kenny Dill; BED member and chairman of the Executive Director Search Commiteee, introduced McDonald, saying the six member search committee was very impressed with the credentials and background of the new director Dill noted that McDonald currently directs Maryland's seven-division economic development program with an annual operating budget of $17 million and 100 staff members. In comments to members of the press, McDonald said he expects to take up duties at the DED in mid-January. In coming to the new post the McDonald said, "As a priority I will focus on working with existing industry in Mississippi. In my opinion that's the area that will generate the greatest share of new jobs."

The incoming executive director also noted that in his new position he intends to help project a more positive image of Mississippi outside the state, particularly to prospective

Wiolent involuntary contractions of a muscle or group of muscles initiate the painful condition of muscle spanns. They can occur in almost any muscle of the body. Most frequently they occur in the back, neck, stomach or bladder. Even the involuntary twitching of the eye ilds or facial muscles is associated with muscle spasm. The jingle or riddle of their cause has been solved. As it has been shown that the majority of all muscle spasms are caused by NERVE ROOT PRESSURE, even though there can be other aggravating factors, injections, muscle relazants, and traction are measures which given temperary relief, but contribute little to the correction of the basic cause of NERVE PRESSURE. A Chiropractic examination will get at the truth of the matter and application of in accessary, will permit the correction of the majority of these condition in the matter usually brings prompt results.

Captain Merlin named

commodore

Captain William F. Merlin, former director of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, member of the National Data Buoy Project, and a resident of Bay St. Louis from 1970 to 1972, has been selected for the rank of commodore in the U.S. Coast Guard.

Capt. Merlin, 50, the chief of staff of the Twelfth Coast Guard District at Alameda, Calif., graduated with a bachelor of science degree in engineering from the Coast Guard Academy and a commission as an ensign on June 1, 1956.

His early service included duty on the cutters Androscoggin and Juniper and at the Loran Transmitting Station Talampulan Island, Republic of the Philippines.

Later he served on the cutter Courier and at the National Data Buoy Project.

Following a tour as executive officer of the Coast Guard Icebreaker Burton Island he commanded the cutter Dependable, homeported at Panama City, Fla.

Assignments to Coast Guard headquarters as chief, budget division and deputy comptroller followed. In July 1981, he was assigned as chief, operations division, Twelfth Coast Guard District and in July 1983 he assumed his present duties.

Capt. Merlin is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, Calif. and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

His military awards include three Meritorious Service Medals and the Coast Guard Commendation Medal.

Seminar on anger slated at USM's Gulf Park campus

Managers will get a practical lesson on how to deal with angry people during a one-day workshop in Long Beach sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi. The USM School of Nursing will present, "Winning Your People Battles," Jan. 25 at the USM Conference Center on the Gulf Park Campus.

The session also will provide information on dealing with subordinates, superiors, physicians, patients and families.

Participants will learn how to discriminate between the different kinds of anger; identify strategies for dealing with each; develop tools for using anger, confrontation, manipulation, communication and negotiation; and will learn how to apply those tools to the workplace, Cost of the session will be $35, including breaks and educational materials. Registration will be from 8:30 to 9 a.m., with the session beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 3:45

For more information on the workshop, contact Dr. Newbern at 266-5445 or write Southern Station Box 5104, Hattlesburg, Miss. 39406.

the number of people threatened, where evacuees will go for safety and shelter, and the amount of time needed for evacuation. These work efforts will form the basis for developing a coordinative mechanism to evacuate and shelter coastal populations across jurisdictional boundaries.

Work completed this year includ-

-Determining the amount of  $\varsigma$ storm surge and winds to be expected from various intensity hurricanes, employing advanced computer storm surge models developed by the National Weather Service:

-Mapping area along the Gulf Coast exposed to various stormthreats;

-Gathering population information to determine the number of persons at risk; -Completing a study to determine the response of people living in the study area to a variety of evacuation. situations; and -Assembling information on current, sheltering facilities, hospitals and nursing homes to assess their vulnerability to different storm

The study's second year work ef-will use this information to determine the proper time frames to evacuate threatened areas. The results, along with probability forecasting techniques implemented by the National Weather Service, will help state and local officials decide when evacuation is necessary under a variety of likely threat situations. The study is scheduled for completion in October 1986. Throughout the course of the study, all findings will. be reviewed with local and state officials to assure that the final work products provide a useful tool for hurricane emergency decisionTHE SEA COAST ECHO--THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1985-31;

METV series on state's writers continues with Walker, Douglas

A conversation with author it takes her to complete a work, she Margaret Walker of Jackson offers television viewers a glimpse into the writer's world

The half-hour program is the fourth in ETV's series on Mississippi writers that is being used in 11th grade American, literature classes across the state.

"PostScripts" focuses on eight writers, Ellen Douglas, Elizabeth Spencer, Ellen Gilchrist, Willie Morris. Shelby Foote, Eudora Welty and Barry Hannah, as well as Walker.

"PostScripts" is currently scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Tuesdays, and beginning Jan, 28, will air at 1 p.m., Mondays.

The tone of the program about Walter, which was taped in her home, is one of relaxation, less an interview than a conversation between two friends.

Ruth Campbell of Mississippi ETV; best known to viewers as host of the weekly series "Faces," is a former student of Walker's, and the two have been friends for more than 20 years.

Walter talks with Campbell about her writing, the influence of her Southern background on her work, her style, how she began writing, the way she goes about writing, and rewriting and the influence that other writers, including Langston Hughes and Richard Wright, have had on her.

She also reads a poem she wrote atage 22, "For My People," which is the poem from which her first book took its title.

Walker says that the first thing a writer must have before sitting before a typewriter is a concept of what he or she is going to write about,

"You must have your concept before you can have words, sentences and paragraphs," she says, depends on whether her concept was complete "in the earliest intuitive moment."

"For me, writing is nine-tenths" rewriting," she said, "though. sometimes a poem comes out whole: if it's been in my subconscious for a long time."

For the most part, though, she says,."I write much as I talk-too much, too easily, too soon, to fast-remember, all that you think when writing isn't all that should be

ELLEN DOUGLAS

The writer also talks about her youth, from the preschool years when she had imaginary playmates "because my sister preferred playing the piano to playing with me," to age 10, when she began writing prose, and age 11 or 12, when she first remembers writing poetry.

She finished high school at age 14 and says she never had peers her own age.

"I wasn't lonely, though," she

Walker is the author of five books, including the novel "Jubilee," which is set in the South at the time of the Civil War.

Ellen Douglas of Greenville is the fifth Mississippi author to be interviewed about her work in Mississippi ETV's "PostScripts" series.

.The half-hour program will be broadcast on the statewide network at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Douglas, the author of a short story collection and and five novels, was born in Natchez and spent-most of her youth in Arkansas. Associate. producer Treanor Wooten of Mississippi ETV talked with her at The Oaks, a historic home in jackson. Douglas spoke often during the interview of the importance of reading to aspiring writers.

"Your real teachers are books," she said. "If you read the work of great writers, almost by osmosis, you can begin to develop judgment of your own writing."

Douglas also spoke of a turning point in her life when she began reading "as an adult, for the human story, rather than as a child, for the joy and excitement of the story."

"I discovered then that writing was about human life. A writer has to imagine himself or herself in other people's shoes,"

For that reason, she continued, writers should try to learn as much as possible about how others live and work in the world, perhaps by taking a year off to work or travel in a new situation.

But, she said honestly, "Most writers can't make much of a living from writing fiction or poetry. It's hard for a novelist to sell his or her first book."

Also in the program, Douglas reads from her book "A Lifetime Burning", and talks about the writers she has known, including Hodding Carter and Shelby Foote, the way she writes and rewrites and how she deals with writer's block.

In accordance with an advanced delivery schedule, the first LCAC was accepted and delivered on time to the U.S. Navy. This first craft underwent extensive testing prior to successful completion of the Navy "At Sea" trials.

Performance exceeded contract specification requirements of speed. range, and payload. The ruggedness of the LCAC was fully demonstrated during Navy trials in operations at high sea states.

This revolutionary improvement in U.S. Landing Craft is now a reality and provides the basis for modernization of amphibious forces.

During Navy Sea Trials, speeds in excess of 40 knots were achieved by the fully amphibious hovercraft. This first delivery initiates a new era of flexibility in amphibious operations.

Texas art league accepting entries

The Beaumont Art League announces that entry forms for its 24th annual Tri-State '85 Juried Fine Art Exhibit are being mailed.

Artists in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi are invited to complete for over $2,500 in prize and purchase award money.

During the '84 show the amount awarded was $4,100 and the league hopes to reach or exceed that amount in the '85 show.

Entries will be received in February —shipped entries the 4th through 15th and hand delivered entries the 11th through 15th. Each artist may enter three works. Fee is $6 for each piece entered. Prints, drawing, graphics, photography, painting in all media, and sculpture in all media except wax will be accepted. The prizes are first, $500; second, $250; third, $100; and six honorable mentions, $25, plus one $500 and numerous $250 and $150 purchase

This is a juried competition sponsored by the Beaumont Art League and funded by Mobil Foundation,

This year's juror will be Maurine Shorkey a noted watercolorist from Greenville, S.C. Awards will be presented Saturday, March 2 and the show is open March 2 through 29.

WOODWRIGHT'S SHOP

Roy Underhill can take a tree and an axe and before long have a house and everything to go in it. He begins his fourth season of showing folks how he does it on "the Woodwright's Shop" at 6 p.m., Sundays beginning Jan. 6 on Mississippi ETV.

In his 13 new programs, Underhill tackles a variety of projects, from kitchen spoons to an entire 18th century blacksmith shop.

The LCAC carries a 60-ton payload and is designed to lift equipment organic to the Marine Air-Ground Task force. It will replace current pre-World War II landing craft scheduled for retirement in the next . decade.

The craft is the first to be turned over to Assault Craft Unit Five which was commissioned in 1983.

The unit will now begin training with the LCAC and in 1986 will move the first six craft to an LCAC base being constructed at Camp Pendleton, Calif. An East Coast LCAC base will also be established at Naval Amphibious Base Little Creek, Va., in

The responsibility for developing and procuring the LCAC (now under construction at the New Orleans facilities of Bell Aerospace Textron) lies with the Naval Sea Systems Command's Amphibious Warfare and Strategic Sealift Program (PMS377), Captain C.H. Piersall Jr., project manager.

Twelve LCAC craft are now under contract to Bell Aerospace Textron from the Naval Sea Systems Command, PMS377, with options for additional craft.

The Navy anticipates procuring a minimum of 90 craft to support shipto-shore requirements of the am- Aerospace. phibious fleet.

The craft are being constructed at the Bell Halter Shipyard in East New Orleans, La., under the local contract administration of the Supervisor of Shipbuilding, Conver-Halter is a company founded by Bell. Aerospace Textron and Halter

Personally, We Think You Deserve A Different Kind of Hospital.

Most people think that the worst thing about going to the hospital is . . . going to the hospital. We think you deserve something better. Our medical staff is top-flight. Exceptionally skilled. Thoroughly experienced. Our technology is state-of-the-art-from digital angiograms to computer-aided laboratory analysis. We offer the advantage of a convenient location, and the assurance of management by American Medical International. But all that doesn't mean we equate professional care with impersonal treatment. Quite the contrary. While we're big enough to provide a broad range of superb medical services, we're not so big that human concerns get lost in the shuffle. In fact, as healers, they're our first concerns. So, we give you the kind of attention that makes going to the hospital a much more comfortable experience. At Garden Park, health care is every bit as personal as it is professional. That's what makes us a different kind of hospital... The Difference Is Entirely Personal.

Your Pet's Health 7

By Dr. Clyde E. Taylor Veterinary Medicine Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

When an animal rubs or scratches its head excessively; it is frequently a sign of ear trouble. But even if these symptoms don't exist, owners should check pet's ears at least once a month. Ear problems can be caused by an accumulation of wax, ear mites, heavy hair-growth or ulcers in the ear canal, water from bathing or a wound.

Removing Wax Deposits

Because the ear is a delicate organ, special care should be taken in examination and cleansing. Carefully clean off wax deposits with a cloth-wrapped finger or cotton-tipped swab dipped in baby oil or peroxide. Change the swabs frequently. Never probe deeply into the ear as this may permanently injure the canal or other delicate inner parts.

Trim Hair Growth

A heavy growth of hair on the underside of the ear prevents ventilation, collects dirt and haids moisture. Keep the hair trimmed away. This is especially important for long-eared breeds of dogs, such as Setters and Spaniels,

Infections

When checking a pet's ears, be alert to possible

Numerous Causes

Be Alert To Symptoms Of Pet Ear Problems

trouble if the inner part of the ear is inflamed, has a foul odor, or if the pet resistently shakes his head, rubs it against the floor, holds it silted to one side or scratches his ears. Don't be misled if any signs of his problem are not seen. Infections often settle deep in the ear canal - all the more reason for a veterinarian to investigate as soon as possible. Do not try to freat serious infections. In addition to being very painful for pets, neglect or inadequate care can lead to long and involved treatment.

Mites Can Cause Disease and Deafness

Ear mites can be a source of annoyance and disease. They are most common in cats but dogs, too, are frequently plagued and made miserable by ear mites. Animals that are constantly scratching or twitching their ear; may be harboring these pests. Often a pet may be seriously infected with mites before there is any outward sign of their presence. Thus, it is a good idea to have pet's ears examined by a veterinarian from time to time.

Mites may pierce the skin of the ear canal, providing an avenue for bacterial infection which may lead to deafness. Your veterinarian should be consulted as to the best methods for freeing pets of mites and treating the ear infection they produce.

"The Mississippi Association of Educators (MAE), and all teachers, crease was necessary for teachers. The recommendation by the State will be disappointed with the action of the State Board of Education to recommend a 15 percent salary increase for teachers to the Mississippi Legislature," says MAE President Alice Harden.

The MAE contends that the recommendation passed by the State Board of Education fails to reflect the commitment made in the Education Reform Act of 1982 to move teachers salaries to the Southeastern states average.

The average salary for 1984-85 in the Southeast Region is $19,684 compared to only $15,971 for Mississippi

"We said at the time of passage of during this current year. The failure Board, if approved of the Legislature to grant any increase this past year now requires a next two years for the Legislature's promise to be fulfilled," continues state will have a surplus of some $40 million or more at the end of this fiscal year.

"This is money that could have been used for teacher salaries this year, when we received nothing from the state," declares Harden.

Research by the MAE reveals that the Southeastern states average salary can be expected to reach Harden.

Legislature, would raise the Mississippi teacher's average to on-$3,500 salary increase in each of the ly $18,366 for 1985-86, still some $2,798 below the average of all Southeast Region teachers,

"The State Board of Education MAE has also pointed out that the has passed up a golden opportunity to provide leadership that would assist our states underpaid teachers," continued MAE President Harden.

> "MAE will continue its efforts to make reaching the Southeast average a reality within the next two years. We will no longer be satisfied with promises," concluded Mrs.

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D. Used by permission; all rights re served by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION - Freebase, white tornado and baseball are slang terms for what dangerous drug abuse phenomenon?

a) Injecting heroin

b) Snorting PCP c) Drinking hashish oil

d) Smoking cocaine. ANSWER - The practice of smoking cocaine originated in Peru during the early 1970's. An elaborate do-it-yourself chemical process converts the typical street cocaine powder into a smokable and much stronger substance called or "freebase." purified cocaine base is smoked in a water pipe or sprinkled on a tobacco or marijuana cigarette for a sudden and intense high. The substance reaches the brain within a few seconds. Smoking cocaine is much more serious than snorting the drug. Correct answer - d.

QUESTION . Smoking of cocaine can produce: a) Psychological dependency b) Physical dependency c) Addiction

d) All of the above ANSWER - The euphoria of smoking cocaine quickly subsides into a feeling of restlessness, irritability and depression. The freebase posthigh is so uncomfortable that smokers, in order to maintain the high and avoid the crash, often continue smoking until they are either exhausted or have run out of cocaine.....

An enormous craving results from the rapid high/low shifts, and the smoker tends come compulsive less able to control the amounts of the drug used. Dosage and frequency of use tend to increase rapidly. Cocaine smokers are likely to develop extreme dependency.

Manic, paranoid or depressive psychoses have been reported in heavy users. Overdose from smoked cocaine can result in cardiorespiratory arrest, and withdrawal symptoms have been reported in some users.

Correct answer - d.

QUESTION - The prescription category of drugs known as the depressants (sedative hypnotics, anti-anxiety, and anti-psychotic drugs) are frequently a cause of drug overdose death, especially in combination with alcohol. What percentage of accidental drug deaths are associated with barbiturates?

a) 10% b) 20%

c) 30% d) 40%

ANSWER - Dr. Ronald J. Dougherty speaking at the White House Conference on Prescription Drugs said that barbiturates alone or in combination with other drugs are associated with 20% of accidental drug deaths and in addition, are responsible for some 15-20% of the 30,000 suicides reported in this country every year. Correct answer - b.

QUESTION - It is well known that individuals can become addicted or dependent on Valium-type drugs. How quickly can a person become "hooked" on Valium, Thorazine or Methaqualone?

a) 30 days b) 60 days c) 90 days

d) 6 months

Dr. Jerri Laube Morgan, dean of the School of Nursing at the University of Southern Mississippi, has cowritten and published a book she believes will serve as a valuable text and reference on the subject of disaster recovery.

Set for release during January, Perspectives on Disaster. Recovery" was written "for the student and professional in nursing, medicine, social work, psychology, the ministry and related disciplines," she said.

The only other text on the subject, "Man and Society in Disaster," published in 1962, is considered to be the definitive book in the area," Dr. Morgan said, adding, "I hope my book will become the new classic: the reference used in all disciplines."

The book was begun in 1973 under a contract with publisher Appleton-Century-Crofts.

Then, in 1982, at a national conference, Dr. Morgan met the book's eventual co-author, Dr. Shirley Murphy, a professor in the Department of Mental Health Nursing at Oregon Health Sciences University in Portland, After learning that Murphy had gathered data at the site of the Mount St. Helens volcanic eruption, Dr. Morgan proposed the idea that they co-author the book.

"To find someone else who had gathered research in the disaster area was just too much," Dr. Morgan said. And the two "revised" the original draft into the 325-page. hard-bound edition available now. just two years after their letter and phone-call collaboration began.

Fourteen contributors to the book. which looks at disaster from a variety of viewpoints, address a myriad of issues surrounding disaster.

The influence of physical injury on the overall disaster-recovery process is reported, as well as the impact on the emerging medical care system -two areas that have not been included in past disaster literature.

One chapter provides material on post-traumatic stress disorder. Unique stresses of disaster and the emotional responses which may be expected from victims are discussed. The 1972 tropical storm, Agnes, serves as a case study.

Mass media influences and a fiveyear study following a 1976 earthquake demonstrate the effects of disaster relief at both the individual and ag-

Morgan's experience in a 1978 blizzard in Indianapolis serves as the book's epilogue. It relates the feelings she experienced in a role reversal as the victim.

Morgan began her research on the health care professional's role during a disaster when she interviewed professionals in Texas at the site of a Lubbock tornado and a Corpus Christi hurricane. This research, along with that she gathered as a consultant on a national advisory group identifying pyschological needs of disaster victims, served as the basis for her dissertation and the

"A lot of people don't realize what goes into writing a book," Dr. Morgan said. "Especially when you must write for permission to reprint so many times.

I said if I ever got this book written. I'd never attempt another one," Dr. Morgan said, adding, "but it has already been discussed."

Volume II of "Perspectives on Disaster Recovery," already in the works, will have more information on children, man-made disasters, more projections and more information on post-tramatic stress disorder, Volume II, Dr. Morgan laughed, should be available in 1988.

A new book, That Reminds Me, by the Rt. Rev. Girault M. Jones, has been published by the University Press in Sewanee, Tenn.

The autobiographical document covers the career of Bishop Jones from his childhood in Woodville through his schooling, his early ministry, his 20 years as seventh Bishop of Louisiana, his chancellorship of the University of the South and his deanship of the theological seminary at Sewanee.

Written with wit and warmth, Jones' book touches on life in the rural South, his philosophy of ministry, and the problems of religion in America—in the parish, the diocese and the national church.

The book is an important document for any priest or active layman and is source material for friends of Sewanee who wish to understand the mystique of the most ambitious project ever launched by Episcopalians in America.

Dealing with original insights on where we are today, he also recreates a rural life which is gone, replaced by superhighways, TV, and consumer goods.

The practical wisdom of his incredible mother and her ingenious neighbors, making a life from what they had, give us a primer for the future. When Atlanta and New York shall be without power forever, it A personal account of Dr. will be a lucky survivor who unearths a copy of Jones' book because it tells how to survive in primitive circumstances.

Dr. Peggy Wittman Prenshaw, assistant dean of the USM Graduate. School and editor of "The Southern Quarterly," has been named general editor of a new series of collected interviews with noted literary figures.

The series, "Literary Conversations," will be published by the University Press of Mississippi and will include conversations with Walker Percy, William Styron, Tennessee Williams, Flannery O'Connor and Katherine Anne Porter.

Prenshaw unknowlingly gave impetus to the project by publishing, "Conversation's with Eudora Welty," in 1984.

"At the time I worked on the book, I didn't think of it as being a model for subsequent books," she said. "But, in many ways it will serve for

The critically acclaimed Welty book was a culmination of Prenshaw's scholarly work on the Mississippi author. She has been a devoted Welty follower, even before she wrote a paper on the author while a student at Mississippi Col-

In addition to the Welty book, the Mendenhall native has published five books with two in press.

According to Hunter Cole, sales and promotions manager of the University Press, the new series will focus upon southern writers, but will not be limited to southerners. Noted authorities will serve as editors of the various books with Prenshaw acting as general editor...

"I think there is a great virture for the scholars in having access to the unpublished interviews," Prenshaw said. "Very obvisouly, these (the series of books) are for the community of book lovers ... and they are for a general audience who want to know about the lives and ideas of the writers."

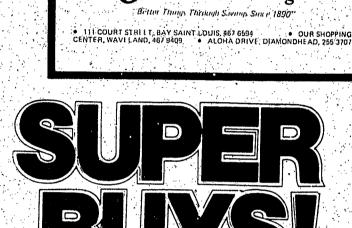

"Conversations with Walker Percy." the second book in the new series, has been completed and will be available in June.

"At first, Percy seems to be a foreigner who is explaining himself to a culture where he doesn't think he entirely belongs," Prenshaw said with an easy smile. "But, through the years, he has come to be much more at home with writing and with literature...it's very much his own territory now.'

From the Welty and Percy conversations, Prenshaw recognized a similarity in the succession of interviews which she expects to continue in future works.

Both books contain interviews gathered over considerable periods of time and both authors can be seen maturing and sophisticating their views and outlooks on their work and on life;

In addition to the Percy book, "Conversations with William Styron," also is scheduled for publication in 1985, with the Williams, O'Connor and Porter books scheduled for 1986

Air Force offering special deals for nurses

Air Force recruiters currently are offering special opportunties to engineering and nursing students,

Men and women who are within 12 months of receiving a baccalaureate degree in one of many engineering disciplines may be eligible to earn at least 1,000 dollars or more monthly pay and allowances from the Air Force while they complete their senior year.

Captain Michael C. Kimberlain, Air Force regruiter in Houston, Tex., is now accepting applications. for enlistment and future commissioning from persons in their senior year majoring in aeronautical, aerospace, architectual, civil, electrical, industrial, mechanical, or nuclear engineering.

Under this plan, applicants who qualify will be enlisted in the regular Air Force at the rank of airman first class until they earn their degree,

In addition, they will receive full use of Air Force entitlements, including medical and dental care and annual cost of living increases.

Upon graduation, individuals will be promoted to staff sergeant and assigned to the next class at the three month Officer Training School at Lackland Air Force Base, near San Antonio, Tex. After graduating from OTS, they Force engineering officers can expect rapid advancement into management positions, excellent working conditions, timely promotions and pay increases commensurate with their ability and career

"Exciting and rewarding challenges await young men and women who qualify for Air Force nursing," said. Captain Kathy Thomas. "The Air Force is looking for registered nurses to serve in hospitals around the world."

The initial three-year commitment begins with commissioning, usually as a second or first lieutenant, based on educational background. New nurses are sent to a two-week orientation course where . they learn about their role as Air Force officers and the Air Force mission, its structure, customs, and

Following the orientation course nurses are assigned to a hospital which may range in size from 25 to

"The Air Force Nurse Corps offers clinical specialities in anesthesia and midwifery and has a special need for mental health and operating room nurses who. qualify," said Captain Thomas.

Like all Air Force members, nurses enjoy a variety of entitlements including a noncontributory retirement plan, 30 days vacation with pay each year, worldwide travel opportunities, medical and dental care, low-cost life insurance, and pay raises based on promotion, longevity and cost-of-

LOW-COST ALTERNATIVES. TO MEAT

For much of the world's population, meat is not a staple. Instead, whole grains such as corn, barley, wheat, oats, rye, millet, bulgur, rice, sorghum, and triticale serve as the primary source of nutrition, and have for thousands of years. Many combinations of such grains with beans, peas, nuts, or dairy products result in complete proteins. In Mexico, for example, a favorite nutritious combination is corn (frequently in the form of tortillas) and beans . .: Europeans often combine rye bread with. cheeses . . . and Africans use sorghum or millet with peanuts or beans. Likewise, Orientals eat many products made from the soybean (tofu; soy flour, etc.), a legume which by itself is high in protein. You may find that the use of unrefined whole grains along with other foods can provide a viable, economical alternative to meat for you and your family, Cookbooks abound with many fine recipes for grains, and once you get the basic preparation techniques down pat, you'll find hundreds of ways to combine these edibles with vegetables, beans, dairy products, and spices. The use of such foods can also be a boon to your family's health. Unrefined whole grains contain ample nutrients, including vitamins, essential amino acids, protein, and starches . . . as well as bran (the outer covering of the kernels), which is a good source of fiber. As you may already know, a high intake of food fiber is vital for good digestion and elimination. Indeed, it's been shown that in regions where natural whole grains are consumed, people have lower rates of gastrointestinal problems than they do in areas where large quantities of meat and refined grain are consumed. By the same token, many Americans have found that eating supplemental bran flakes is a good way to deal with problems of irregularity, But if our commercially available cereals and breads contained the natural bran of whole grains, fewer people would have these problems in the first place!

The refined grains most commonly used in commercial foods and flours are little more than residual starch, with artificial vitamins added to "enrich" the product. In the refining process, the outer hull and the endosperm, which is the most nutritious part of the grain, are stripped away to produce an "attractive," even-textured, spoilage-resistant

Many people feel that our nation, and the world, could have far more food available for the hungry if naturally occurring grains instead of meat were promoted for food use. Why? For the simple reason that it takes approximately ten pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef! (About 90% of the corn grown in the United States is grown as cattle feed.) Worse still, the introduction and the promotion of beef as a food source in developing nations have created hunger and ecological crises, ... since land that was previously used for human food production or left in its natural state has been shifted into cattle feed production. This is not to say that we should never eat meat, but rather that we should consider the benefits of reducing our meat consumption to a reasonable

According to one of the contest judges, about 300 students showed up to compete or to watch their respective dorm mates sing some of those favorite Christmas tunes. -

Huff Hall took first place in the singing competition, while Marion Hall won the decoration contest and captured second place in caroling. White Hall came in second behind Marion in decorations and Crosby took third place position. White also

Blue Jeans Garden Club

Mrs. Shirley Cox was presented the Blue Jeans Club's highest award, an engraved silver bowl, when the group met last Thursday at the Round Table Restaurant for their annual Christmas luncheon and party.

Winning potted Christmas plants for second place was a tie, Mrs. J. C. Goodloe and Mrs. A.M, Thomas; third place, Mrs. Lloyd Garcia. Guests of the Blue Jeans, Mrs. Irene Giaconi, Mrs. Alma Giaconi, Mrs. Robert Treadaway and Mrs. Dorothy Bessey, were introduced and welcomed by the group.

with the holiday theme, members and guests received miniature Santa Claus candy jar favors created by Ms. Beverley Praetorius, decorations chairlady.

A surprise visit by Santa Claus, accompanied by one of his helpers, bearing gifts for each of the ladies added to the gaiety of the affair. Games were played and prizes awarded to the following winners: Mesdames Treadaway, Wanda Berthelot, Irene Graff, Talmadge Conway, Davis Caillier, Robert Taconi and Alma Giaconi.

Door prizes were won by Mesdames Cox, Gilbert Brechtel and Alma

Luncheon chairladies were Mesdames Charles Dickson and Caillier; decorations and favors, Ms. Praetorius; awards, Mesdames Goodloe, Cox, Gloria Norton and Beverly Coogan; photographer, Mrs. Conway. Next business meeting will be in January.
